DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. Applicant's submission of an Information Disclosure Statement on November 16, 2001 has been fully considered as indicated by the attached signed PTO-1449.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-9 and 11-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case, the steps of claims 1-9 and 11-20 fail to apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts. The steps of claims 1-9 and 11-20 can be carried out manually without applying, involving, using, or advancing the technological arts. Claim 10 is not rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 101 because it applies, involves, and uses displaying information to a web page. In order to overcome the 35 U.S.C. § 101 rejection, the examiner recommends amending claims 1, 15, and 16 to include a positive recitation in the body of the claim of applying, involving, using, or advance the technological arts. For example, claim 1 of cited U.S. Patent No. 6,085,176 to Woolston sets forth a method that positively applies, involves, uses, and advances the technological arts.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-9, 11, 13, and 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 4,992,940 (hereinafter "Dworkin") in view of the Examiner's assertion of Official Notice.

Regarding claim 1, Dworkin discloses a method for interactively assisting purchase-decision-making, comprising: receiving data relating to purchasing options (see column 5, lines 35-42), the options including shopping for goods and services (see column 5, line 1); querying based on the data (via database 3); receiving a response to the querying (see column 6, lines 16-25; Figure 6); and guiding purchase decision-making based on the data and the response until a final purchase selection is indicated (by displaying responses relevant to request; see Figure 6);

Art Unit: 3627

[claim 3] generating at least one selectable list of purchase categories and receiving at least one selection of a purchase category (see column 4, lines 67-68); [claim 4] generating a plurality of selectable lists or purchase categories (see Figure 4); [claim 5] transmitting the user data to a seller or provider of service (see column 4, lines 19-20); [claim 6] receiving seller or service provider data based on the transmitting (see column 4, lines 19-20); [claim 7] receiving seller or provider of service data (see column 10, lines 50-53); [claim 8] analyzing data from a seller or a provider of service in order to make a purchase recommendation (see Figure 6); [claim 9] relaying data to a seller or provider or service, in order to finalize a purchase transaction (see column 4, lines 19-24); [claim 11] enabling a plurality of purchase transactions to be made (it is inherent that more than one purchase is enabled); and [claim 13] calculating a total purchase cost associated with a purchasing selection (calculation of total cost is inherent during transaction payment).

Dworkin fails to explicitly disclose receiving data related purchasing options, wherein the options including investing [as required by claims 1 and 2] and traveling [as required by claim 3]. Dworkin's invention is related to receiving data related to purchasing option, wherein the options include any good or service.

The Examiner takes Official Notice that it was old and well known at the time the invention was made to receive investing and traveling purchase options.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Dworkin with purchasing options specific to investing and traveling, because investing and traveling purchasing are more efficiently conducted using a computer system.

Regarding claims 15, 16, and 17, the Examiner relies on the same analysis as set forth above for similar method claim 1.

6. Claims 10 and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dworkin in view of Official Notice as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,085,176 (hereinafter “Woolston”).

Regarding claim 10, Dworkin fails to explicitly disclose an interface for receiving information from and displaying information to a web page.

Woolston teaches the use of a web page user interface (see column 9, lines 10-15).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Dworkin with a web interface as taught by Woolston, because web interfaces are easily navigated and understood by computer users.

Regarding claims 18-20, Dworkin fails to disclose transmitting and receiving counter offers.

Woolston teaches the use of transmitting and receiving counter offers (see column 8, lines 32-67).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Dworkin with the transmission of counter offers as taught by Woolston, because using counter-offers allows both parties to negotiate the final purchase price of the transaction wherein empowering both the buyer and selling to optimize their profits (seller) and costs (buyer).

Art Unit: 3627

7. Claims 12 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dworkin in view of Official Notice as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of U.S. Patent Application No. US 2002/0113809 (hereinafter "Akazawa").

Regarding claims 12 and 14, Dworkin fails to explicitly disclose receiving information relating to the total amount of money available for purchase purpose and comparing the available money to total purchase cost.

Akazawa teaches comparing a budget amount with purchase cost (see Figure 5, "Question 2").

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Dworkin with the monetary budget taught by Akazawa, because setting available spending guidelines allows the system to better match the customer's needs.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to Applicant's disclosure.

Peckover and Lin are cited of interest for disclosing shopping agents for electronic commerce.
